Hello and welcome to our January 2024 catalogue!

With uncertainty about the economy, rising prices and 'cost of living' worries, 2023 was not easy for any of us; many retailers, including ourselves, struggled with falling sales. Added to this for us was a difficult move to a new warehouse, and major problems with despatch, for which we sincerely apologise. Please bear with us, we're doing our best to ensure that 2024 will improve.

On the plus side, our Liverpool shop won the regional 'Retailer of the Year' award and is now entered for the national competition – wouldn't it be great to have a Fair Trade, eco shop at the top of the retail charts?

For the first time, we've made a buying trip to Brazil, so instead of just telling everyone to 'save the Amazon', we can start to play a tiny, tiny part in helping to do so. The jewellery we'll be buying from Amazonia will give the artisans a strong reason to respect and protect their local environment, because they'll be making a living from it. The pictures in this catalogue hardly do justice to some of the designs, which look spectacular, we hope you will try them out (pages 38-41). We're also excited to introduce recycled gemstone 'trees' (page 42), from another Brazilian supplier.

Other key new ranges include recycled cotton – socks (pages 24-5) and tote bags (pages 6-7). We hope you like them.

Very best wishes
Jeremy Piercy

Holyland products

Our new supplier the Holyland Handicraft Cooperative Society is based in Bethlehem, its staple product made from olive trees, a symbol of peace. War has indeed destroyed much of their livelihood in recent months, we ask you to support them even if only with a small order.

The wood is collected without harming the ancient trees, using prunings and sprouts from the trunks. HHCS supports 35 producer groups bringing work to 2,000 individuals.

NEW Tote bags

Made from recycled cotton

We've campaigned against plastic bags for years, urging you to use long lasting jute bags instead. What about cotton? Even if you use it 100 times, a cotton bag may be as bad. To grow the cotton for 1 bag, you need - guess what? - 2,000 litres of water. In countries like India, hit by drought more and more as climate change worsens, water is a scarce commodity.

So, we are delighted to introduce this new range of RECYCLED cotton bags. We hope you like the designs; more will follow!

Jute bags

The world uses more than 500 billion plastic bags each year – that's 150 for each person on the planet! They're completely unnecessary and it's clear what we should do – use long-life bags instead, as we always used to. These jute bags are an excellent, eco-friendly option. Jute is a great fibre, fast-growing, biodegradable and recyclable. It needs far less land and water to grow than cotton, and can also be grown without pesticides.

These bags are 100% vegan; no animals are harmed, they're water-based and AZO-free dyes are used.

They're a great alternative to single-use plastic bags and they last for years! And they're Fair Trade too.

Standard size for jute bags is 30x30x20cm

Shared Earth’s jute bag supplier receives coveted “green award”!

Shared Earth’s jute bag supplier in Kolkata has become the first factory in eastern India to receive the ‘Gold Standard’ from the Indian Green Building Council (IGBC), a significant step in its stride towards championing environmental sustainability.

The Gold Standard is described by the IGBC as representing ‘National Excellence’ in areas such as site selection and planning, water and energy conservation, use of raw materials, indoor environmental quality, occupational health of workers, and design processes. Salient features include:

- Solar power
- An effluent treatment plant
- Energy saving machines
- A rainwater harvesting system
- LED lights
- Less water consuming plants and trees

They’re an ‘eco hero’ supplier, at a time when global warming has become the key issue for humankind. “Just producing environmentally-friendly bags is not enough for us,” they say. “Our vision is to ensure a sustainable future, and this includes every step we undertake. The manufacturing of our products has to be done in the greenest way possible. We would sincerely like to thank IGBC for recognising our efforts in creating a minimum-waste, energy-efficient manufacturing infrastructure.”

They have been exporting for 25 years and have supplied Shared Earth since 2008. We introduce new designs each year and their bags are one of our most popular ranges, appealing to a wider and wider audience as awareness about climate change and the need to tackle it grows. We’re delighted to be able to supply a product which is not just an ideal alternative to plastic bags, it’s also produced in such an exemplary way.

These bags are a beacon of hope in a country which already suffers badly from climate change. Greenhouse gases are kept to a minimum through energy saving machines, and millions of gallons of water are saved each year through the rainwater harvesting system. The importance of saving water is paramount in a hot country like India and less water-demanding plants and trees have also been planted to save this precious resource.

'Jugaad' is the nerve centre of Karm Marg, the home for street children which we support. Its aim is to empower vulnerable young adults with livelihood skills, at the same time generating income for the home. 'Jugaad' is a Hindi word meaning 'making the most out of however little may be available to you', Karm Marg encourages friends and volunteers to donate waste newspaper, textiles and bottles for them to use as raw materials.

Jugaad is a way of life for them, transforming waste into products like these trendy, usable bags which will last for years.

Why Bamboo and not cotton?
There are many reasons why bamboo viscose yarn is good for the environment.

Bamboo grows without the need for fertilisers or pesticides. It naturally requires less water (a third of the water required to grow cotton), so farmers don't need to irrigate their crop, saving water in a country where water shortages are a big problem.

Bamboo yields are ten times higher per hectare than cotton and the plant rarely needs replanting, sprouting on its own. Bamboo yarns require less dye than cotton and keep their colour for longer.

Why is bamboo viscose great to wear?

- it's supersoft
- it absorbs 40% more moisture than cotton
- it's a breathable fabric keeping feet fresh and dry
- it's comfortable
- it's naturally anti-bacterial
- it's durable and stronger than cotton
- it's hypo allergenic

Yarn Composition:
75% bamboo viscose
22% polyamide
3% elastane

Sock sizes:
MED (Medium): UK 3-7 Euro 36-41
LAR (Large): UK 7-12 Euro 41-47

Try these socks for a great present for your friends and loved ones. Socks – traditionally the most boring present imaginable – now exciting because they're cool and they're helping to save the planet...

The bamboo used in our bamboo socks is FSC certified, and also meets all OEKO-TEX standards sTeP and 100 for chemicals, environmental performance and management, social responsibility, quality management and safety. They're made in a small factory in Uttar Pradesh in the north of India.

Cotton is one of the worst fabrics for the planet. Growing it uses huge amounts of water which would be used for other crops. Recycled cotton on the other hand bypasses the production stage and saves old textiles from being send to the landfill.

GENKI

About Genki

We're delighted to be a distributor for GENKI, an eco-fashion, Fair Trade label, making women's and unisex clothes from upcycled, vintage Indian silk saris. Every item is beautifully crafted, one-of-a-kind and high quality.

GENKI is against fast fashion and is a sustainable brand with bespoke, bold and vibrant pieces. The beauty of these upcycled designs is that every item has a history - this is what makes each piece unique.

Camille, the founder of Genki, is a fashion designer, keen to update the kind of 'hippy' image often associated with recycled clothing, into designs which will appeal to all. We think she's succeeded brilliantly, and her clothing will be as popular as the top-selling kantha scarves we already import from India...

GENKI doesn't define gender or specify who can wear its designs. Many of its pieces, like the popular wrap tops, can be adjusted to fit a variety of body shapes and sizes; Genki is for everybody.

The Story

Camille was inspired by her French granny and the vintage fabrics in her fascinating dressing up box. Especially silk, which she found keeps you cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

As she grew older, she found it impossible to find these vibrant colours and materials in the shops. She also became acutely aware of the damage the fast fashion industry has on the environment, and on the people involved in making the clothes we wear.

In Rajasthan, India she found herself reconnecting with the childlike glee she had going through her granny's clothes so many years before, transfixed with the idea that as each silk sari was recycled, every piece had its own personal story. She began working with different families who specialised in sourcing these silk saris, then with artisan tailors, upcycling them into beautiful new garments that were also fairly traded. Right from the start, she was keen to support small family business, pay them fairly and treat them as equal partners in her new business.

Fair Trade

Genki works with independent tailors and fabric traders in Rajasthan, India, has personal relationships with everyone in the production chain, from the families who sell the recycled fabrics, to the tailors who make the clothes. The supply line is simple, personal and transparent with every item handmade with love.

Camille tries to ensure that every step of the process is kind to our planet. It's the opposite of 'fast' fashion; fabrics are sourced from local, family-run businesses, and each piece is made lovingly by hand.

Amazönas

Elcione de Souza started her business in Manaus (the capitol of Amazonia) not just to make a life for herself but to provide local indigenous women with an opportunity to improve themselves and their families.

We all hear about the eco aspects of the Amazon, but what about the people who live there? Most of the thirteen women who work with Elcione have problems at home with drugs or violence - almost all have sons or daughters who get involved with drugs as teenagers. Now, through collecting and cleaning seeds, helping to make this jewellery and a living for themselves - they've become clean. They're creating a great example for their community.

Rosa's life has been completely changed through working for Elcione. Her husband wouldn't allow her to leave home, so Elcione taught her the skills to work from home. Now she lives alone and through her earnings making jewellery, she has built a house for herself and her mother.

The wood seeds used in this jewellery are all sustainable but just as important, they teach local people to value their environment and how the Amazon region can provide a living for them. This counters, in a small way, the hankering of young people who live there for 'western' products and lifestyles, and the threat posed by large companies which exploit Amazonia.

This Jewellery is made by an association of 9 women in Pelotas, Brazil, who live on the shores of Lake Lagoa dos Patos. The local fishermen use shrimp nets which last about 5/6 years, and then must be thrown away – or would be if they weren't reused by these creative women, who've turned them to another use. Very unusual and a great example of upcycling!

A Fair Trade success story

Ishmael Omondi (ZOM code jewellery) was brought up in Kibera Slum, Nairobi, which is home to over 250,000 people crammed into just 2.5km. Life is tough and most people stay stuck in the cycle of poverty. Ishmael lived as a street boy, after running away from a broken home. During this time, he received help from Zuri Design, which with its Kenya partner was training former street boys in the art of jewellery making. Ishmael excelled at this and went on to establish his own business. In 2022 he succeeded in his goal to move out of Kibera, to a secure and clean neighbourhood with a bricks and mortar home, thus breaking out of the cycle of poverty and ensuring a different life for his family and 3 young children.

Last year Ishmael and Helen (from Zuri) established Omondi Jewellery, which aims to showcase the beauty of workmanship that has been created from overcoming hardship, and give a contemporary feel to traditional African design. It employs people from Kibera slum, providing a stable income or a stepping stone to those, like Ishmael, who are battling against the odds to thrive in a slum.

Shared Earth has been integral to Ishmael's journey, meeting with him in 2009 in his original workshop. Our support is a testimony to the change that is possible, regular orders, a long term relationship, support when things go wrong (for instance, Ishmael's workshop burnt down in 2021). We hope you will help to ensure a bright future for him and his Kibera artisans, by ordering this stunning jewellery.

Jewellery displays

Give your sales a boost with these attractive stands from Bali. They're handmade using jempinis wood, also known as the Umbrella tree, a sustainable wood which originally came from Australia.
